Five U.S. Sailors Killed In Guantanamo Mine Field

NEWS BRIEFS

LBJ Tour On Poverty

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson will extend his on-the-spot studies of poverty-stricken areas to five more states this week.

The White House announced the President will visit Maryland, Ohio, Tennessee, North Carolina and Georgia, in that order, on Thursday and Friday. Except in Ohio, his inspections will be in Appalachian Mountain areas.

Trade Barrier Talks Open

GENEVA (AP)—The Kennedy round of talks on breaking down world trade barriers opened Monday with a pledge from President Johnson for U.S. help for a fruitful conclusion. The 75 nations at the conference were at odds on how to go forward.

Johnson's pledge was read to the formal opening session by former Secretary of State Christian A. Herter.

"We in the United States look upon these negotiations as an important opening to a better world," Johnson's message said.

Irish Won't Fly Red Flag

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — No foreign flags will be displayed at the European meeting of the U.N. Children's Fund on May 11 because the Irish government will not permit the Soviet flag to be flown.

Methodists Hit Race Barriers

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP)—Delegates to a world-wide General Conference of the Methodist Church adopted a policy Monday night calling on all Methodist pastors and congregations to open their churches to people of all races and use their influence to remove racial barriers.

Reds Take Back Radar Systems

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Russians have pulled out of Cuba a highly sophisticated new radar system that probably added to the effectiveness of Fidel Castro's antiaircraft missiles, it was learned Monday night.

This radar system was withdrawn about two or three months ago. It was said to have been less susceptible to jamming, capable of faster target tracking, and probably was for use against low-flying planes.

NAACP Pickets General Motors

DETROIT (AP)—Sign-carrying pickets marched at General Motors headquarters building Monday in a demonstration by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The pickets held aloft signs saying "GM Crow must go" and "GM job practices are unfair." They paraded in warm, sunny weather.

The NAACP has accused General Motors of anti-Negro discrimination in its hiring and general personnel policies.

GM, world's largest manufacturing corporation with approximately 375,000 employes, has denied this, citing what it called examples to the contrary.

Nikita Calls NATO 'War Bloc'

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev charged Monday that the Atlantic Alliance "war bloc" was trying to convert Cyprus into an unsinkable aircraft carrier. He said his government opposes all foreign interference in the affairs of the trouble island.

At the same time, the Communist party newspaper Pravda said the United States, Britain and their allies want Cyprus as a nuclear rocket base. It accused Britain of hamstringing the U.N. peace force now trying to end the Greek-Turkish Cypriot fighting.

Stock Market Rally Dims

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rallied sharply Monday for the second straight session but the the advance was blunted toward the end, in advance of disappointing dividend news from General Motors. Trading was fairly active.

The market advance was progressive until late afternoon when the Dow Jones industrial average showed a large gain of 7.04. The Dow closed at 823.83, a gain of 6.73

High Court Stays Out Of School Boundary Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court refused Monday to upset a ruling that school boundaries need not be revamped to force integration when they are honestly drawn with no intention to segregate the races.

While only the Gary, Ind., school system is directly involved, the court's action may have a broad impact on other cities where compliance with integration demands could force many pupils to be transported by bus across town.

The court's refusal to hear the Gary case does not necessarily mean it agrees with the lower court's decision.

The question could return to the tribunal on other appeals and the justices might decide then to hear arguments and lay down their own views.

The court refused also to review a decision that Negro pupils are entitled to have their entire school system on a nonracial basis, including assignment of teachers, principals, supervisors and supporting personnel.

The Duval County School Board in Florida had contended that the court's 1954 and 1955 integration rulings dealt solely with admission of children to schools on a nonracial basis and not to school employes.

The two orders — one a setback for school integration forces, the other a victory—came almost 10 years after the court handed down its historic ruling that public schools must be racially integrated. That decision was announced May 17, 1954.

S. Courtland Project Gets Wide Support

EAST STROUDSBURG — Enthusiastic support was given the S. Courtland St. federal redevelopment project at a public hearing last night. Fourteen spoke for it and no one against it.

King Beers, executive director of the Redevelopment Authority of Monroe County, said the total net cost of the 4.5-acre project would be $324,995.

He said the Borough of East Stroudsburg would have a share of only $8,937 because of federal credits gained from the Brodheads Creek flood control project.

And that cash contribution may be partially paid by the Pennsylvania Bureau of Community Development, leaving the borough with a cost of only $4,700 as its share of street-widening costs, Beers said.

He said the Courtland St. project would remove buildings in poor condition, eliminate haphazard land use, expand the business area, provide space for new Post Office and Acme Market buildings, and strengthen the tax base of East Stroudsburg.

He said the Courtland St. Project must now be approved by borough and county officials and sent to the federal Housing and Home Finance Agency for final approval.

Lincoln Ave. Delay

He said revisions of the larger Lincoln Ave. project went to the HHFA for approval in November, 1963. Another hearing will be held on that project after revised plans are okayed.

William Schnaitman, president of the borough council, conducted the hearing. After Beers spoke, 14 people supported the project.

Mayor Joseph Small of Stroudsburg — "Anything that helps East Stroudsburg has got to help Stroudsburg and the whole county. I personally and I as mayor am 100 per cent for the project."

Alex L. Bensinger, past president of Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce—"We heartily support this as a very worthwhile project."

Montgomery F. Crowe, president of Pocono Mountains Industries—"This area is on the upgrade. This will do a great deal to help the whole area."

Stuart Marsh, assistant postmaster at East Stroudsburg—"We are a sectional center serving 42 post offices and are cramped for space. The new post office is on the drawing board and we are anxious to get into it."

Ralph Burrows, chairman of the East Stroudsburg Borough Planning Commission — "This area will bring in many times more taxes than it does now."

Jesse Flory, representing the East Stroudsburg Citizens Action Committee—"We will do all we can to help the project."

Carl T. Secor, chairman of the city planning committee of the Exchange Club—"This will do great things for East Stroudsburg."

Jesse Lynch, president of the Monroe County NAACP—"I am in favor of the project. It will help East Stroudsburg and Stroudsburg."

Also supporting the Courtland St. Project were Ralph Reppert, manager of PP&L in Stroudsburg; Irving Sommer, vice president of East Stroudsburg Borough School Board; Kenneth Alspach, president of East Stroudsburg Businessmen's Assn.; Frank Lanterman, funeral director; and Mrs. Albert Koster, League of Women Voters member.

Van Sant Urges End Of 'Gravy Train'

(See Editorial Page Four)

HARRISBURG (AP)—Legislation to divert commissions on state-placed insurance from politically favored brokers to student loans was proposed in the Senate Monday.

The bill was sponsored by Sen. John T. Van Sant, R-Lehigh, chairman of the Senate Insurance Committee which killed a similar proposal in 1963.

Gov. Scranton ordered an end to the so-called "insurance gravy train" several weeks ago, calling for the funds to be diverted to the higher education assistance agency for scholarships.

However, at the time the legality of the proposal was questioned on grounds that the state constitution forbids kickbacks from the insurance underwriter to the state.

In the past, the commissions were distributed among politically-favored brokers on a patronage basis. Atty. Gen. Walter E. Alessandroni has ruled that turning over the funds to the higher education assistance agency would in no way violate the constitution.

Van Sant's bill would clear up all questions of legality.

Agencies handling the bulk of the state's insurance are the property and supplies department and the general state authority.

Van Sant's bill highlighted brief sessions in the House and Senate. Both chambers, returning after a month's layoff for the April 28 primary election, adjourned until next Monday.

Smathers Wants End To Age Bias

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring that jobs are hard to come by for people over 45, Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla. proposed Monday that the civil rights bill be amended to include a ban on age barriers to employment.

"It is frequently easier for a young Negro to find work than for an aged white person," Smathers told the Senate. "The bill now before us will increase that advantage and will, in many cases, increase, not decrease, job discrimination."

Smathers, taking up the Southern fight against the legislation as the debate entered its 47th day, said he is opposed to the bill but if it were going to become law "it would be greatly improved by including age as one of the bases upon which discrimination could not be practiced."

Smathers introduced an amendment carrying out his proposal.

The Senate Democratic leader, Mike Mansfield of Montana, disclosed that an attempt is being made to work out a package approach on all amendments.

It was learned that Dirksen, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, other Justice Department officials and several additional Democratic and Republican senators will begin a round of talks at the Capitol Tuesday.

Viet Nam Reporters Win Two Pulitizers

NEW YORK (AP)—Three of the 1964 Pulitzer prizes in journalism were awarded Monday for newspaper attacks on fraud and corruption.

The St. Petersburg (Fla.) Times received the Pulitzer Gold Medal for public service for a year-long campaign to uncover reckless spending of public funds in the Florida State Turnpike Authority.

Norman C. Miller of the Wall Street Journal won the general prize for local reporting for his story of a multimillion-dollar fraud in vegetable oils.

The award for special local reporting went to reporters Albert V. Gaudiosi and James V. Magee and photographer Frederick A. Meyer of the Philadelphia Bulletin, for their expose of a numbers racket and police collusion in South Philadelphia.

Additionally, Mrs. Hazel Brannon Smith of the weekly Lexington (Miss.) Advertiser, won the prize for editorial writing for the "whole volume of her work during the year, including attacks on corruption."

Correspondents

The 1964 Pulitzer Prize for international reporting was won jointly by two American correspondents in Viet Nam — Malcolm W. Browne of The Associated Press, and Davis Halberstam of the New York Times. They will share the $1,000 prize.

The Times has won 29 prizes over the years and The Associated Press 19.

Merriman Smith, White House correspondent for United Press International, was awarded the prize for national reporting for his coverage last Nov. 22 of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas.

Robert H. Jackson of the Dallas Times Herald won the photography prize for his picture of Jack Ruby shooting Lee Harvey Oswald, Kennedy's accused assassin.

A special Pulitzer citation was made this year to the Gannett Newspapers, for "The Road to Integration," a program of success stories of people and communities that are solving racial problems. The series was developed through the reportorial, photographic and editorial resources of the 15 Gannett newspapers in 1963, as well as its new bureaus in Washington, Albany, N.Y., and Trenton, N.J. It was the first Pulitzer citation to a newspaper group.

The 1964 award for newspaper cartooning went to Paul F. Conrad, for cartoons published in the Denver Post. He recently moved to the Los Angeles Times. His $1,000 prize was based on his work during the singled out for special attention. entire year, and no cartoon was

No Drama

Also omitted without explanation was the Pulitzer Prize for music.

Awards in the field of letters were:

Biography — Walter Jackson Bate for his biography of "John Keats." He is chairman of the English department at Harvard University.

General nonfiction — Richard Hofstadter, professor of American history at Columbia University, for his "Anti-Intellectualism in American Life."

Poetry — Louis Simpson for "At the End of the Open Road." He is an assistant professor of English at the University of California (Berkeley).

Each category in the field of journalism carries a $1,000 prize, except that the newspaper cited for meritorious public service received a gold medal. Awards in the field of letters are worth $500 each.

British Protest Atrocities

LONDON (AP) — Britain lashed out at Yemen and the United Arab Republic Monday, accusing them of fomenting violent subversion in the South Arabian Federation. The United States was asked to investigate a report the heads of two slain British soldiers were displayed in Taiz, Yemen's diplomatic capital, but Yemen denied anyone had been decapitated.

Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home leveled the subversion charge in the House of Commons, telling Parliament Britain had asked the United States to investigate reports that the heads of the two dead soldiers had been displayed publicly in Taiz.

But Yemen's information minister Ahmed Almarwani denied the reports that two British soldiers killed in a clash with Yemini rebels had been decapitated.

In a statement over San'a radio, Almarwani called the reports a "British lie . . . perhaps concealing behind it a secret British aggression plan against our republic." He warned the British against "such folly."

Douglas-Home had told Commons Britain would fight back, and pull troops out of West Germany if necessary to build up force in the Middle East.

Signaling another bitter crisis in British-Arab relations, Sir Alec told of a new and undeclared war amid the crags and mountains crisscrossing the Dhala country, 60 miles north of Aden and overlooking Yemen.

It was there that two British soldiers died in a battle for the Aden-Dhala road last week. The road serves as a lifeline to a key sector of the front, where hostile tribesmen confront the British and units of the 4,000-strong Arabian federal army.

Adam Clayton Powell

Powell Ducks Court

NEW YORK (AP) — Rep. Adam Clayton Powell won another brief delay Monday in fighting a libel judgment won against him.

State Supreme Court Justice Thomas C. Chimera gave Powell's lawyer until Wednesday in a case involving a judgment won by a Negro widow 13 months ago. Reduced on appeal to less than one-fourth the orignial $211,500, the $46,500 award is unpaid.

Powell, 55, the most powerful Negro politician in the nation, has yet to appear in court.

Chimera indicated he was tiring of "a lot of ducking" in the case. Sooner of later Powell will be "brought to book" for the money, Chimera told the lawyer for the widow, Esther James, 67, a domestic.

The case involves a remark Powell made in 1960 in a running word war with the police department. He called Mrs. James a "bag woman" — collector of graft—for corrupt policemen.

She sued and won.

Her lawyers claim Powell transferred most of his assets to relatives of his third wife in Puerto Rico to avoid payment.

Harlem, however, waits to be shown. In this Negro community of New York City which Powell has represented in Washington for 20 years, the colorful, controversial Congressman, a Democrat, seems to grow politically stronger with each new battle.

Stassen Loses New Round

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Harold E. Stassen lost again Monday in his court fight to be listed on California's Republican presidential primary election ballot. His attorneys immediately moved to another court.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge Lloyd H. Burke turned down Stassen's request that preparations for the June 2 primary be halted until the former Minnesota governor's name is placed on the ballot.

Swimmers Strayed Into Danger Zone

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five young Navy seamen were killed Saturday night when they walked into a mine field protecting the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba, it was announced Monday.

The Navy said the seamen, who were on liberty from their ship, may have become lost in the darkness.

The mine field is inside the base, close to the wire fence that separates Guantanamo from Cuban territory.

The announcement said the men, killed in a series of three expolsions, were:

Seaman Richard Garrett, 19, Oceanside, Ny.; Seaman Steven C. Knight, 19, Cranston, R.I.; Seman Arthur H. Orr, 21, Hendersonville, N.C.; Seaman Henry J. Pazdan Jr., 19, Trenton, N.J., and Seaman David N. Pyle, 19, Crofton, Ky.

They were on liberty from their ship, the amphibious assault vessel Boxer, which is at Guantanamo for what the Navy called "routine fleet training exercises."

"Authorities at Guantanamo can only speculate as to the cause of the tragedy," since there are no known witnesses," the announcement said.

The explosions occurred about a mile from the main road to one of the beach areas.

The Navy said it is possible that the men, who had swimming trunks and bathing towels, may have become lost in the darkness "and strayed into the well-marked restricted area."

The Navy said the mine field can be entered only by climbing a barbed wire fence, and is surrounded by warning signs.

As an additional precaution, the Navy said, all sailors are fully briefed on restricted areas before leaving their ships for liberty, and are told to stay on main roads and not to look for short-cuts.

The Navy said that positive identification of the victims was delayed by darkness, "and the need for maximum caution is reaching the scene of the tragedy."

Negroes Let State Accuse Chester

CHESTER, Pa. (AP)—The Pennsylvania Human Relations Committee Monday formally accused the Chester School Board of maintaining segregated schools after Negro civil rights groups which raised the issue in demonstrateions and sit-ins refused to file a formal complaint.

The board flatly denied the charge.

The commission's action came after Negro attorneys questioned the authority and power of the state agency to issue any kind of legal, binding order. They contended the commission couldn't make the school board do anything.

When the commission became both the prosecutor and jury, the civil rights attorneys withdrew from the hearing which had been ordered by Gov. William W. Scranton after violence resulted last month in street demonstrations. Hundreds were arrested and some still are in jail unable to raise bail.

Nathan Agran, commission attorney, said he was angry that the civil rights lawyers refused to participate in the hearing. They left at the luncheon recess and didn't return.

"They are forcing me to do the job (presenting the evidence) that they should be doing," Agran told a newsman.

The commission, when the Negro lawyers first objected, suggested the civil rights group file the formal complaint. This they refused to do. Then the commission issued it.

Good Morning!

The boss was greeted with cheers when he announced: "This morning we will have only a half-day of work." The jeers came when he added: "And another half-day this afternoon."

Beagles Steal Spotlight At LBJ Conference

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson held a seven-lap news conference Monday, with 20 reporters trailing and questioning him around and around the White House grounds.

He discussed golf, politics, poverty, dogs, family, news coverage, and the President's safety—part of it off the record.

The two young beagles, Him and Her, again stole the show. The rollicking pair, who yelped when the President hefted them by the ears last week, causing an outcry from animal-lover groups, were being walked on the lawn.

The President called them over and they came with a rush, nearly upsetting two cameramen, because the dogs were tied together on a long chain.

On reaching the President, "Him" rolled over to have his belly scratched. Johnson obliged, then lifted both dogs by the ears while the cameramen took pictures.

Somebody noted that Him had not yelped. The President replied with a grin: "He doesn't yelp unless an AP photographer gets too close to him."

Seven Primaries Grab Spotlight Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Voters in six states and the District of Columbia cast ballots Tuesday on subjects ranging a presidential preference to a right-to-work law.

Most of the attention is on Indiana where Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace is challenging a stand-in for President Johnson with a vigorous campaign against the administration's civil rights bill.

Also drawing attention are some sharply contested Senate nomination races in Ohio and Oklahoma, a scramble for Florida's Democratic gubernatorial nomination and the issue of unpledged presidential electors in Alabama.

Local Races

There are no contests of national significance in the New Mexico and District of Columbia primaries.

In all, nominations will be made for two gubernatorial, four Senate and 63 House seats. Voters will choose delegates to cast 67 Republican and 153 Democratic votes at the parties' national nominating conventions.

Gov. Matthew E. Welsh of Indiana, supporting President Johnson, figures to win that state's Democratic presidential primary. But the question is: How large a share of the votes will Wallace get with his campaign against the civil rights bill now before the Senate?

Unknown is how many opponents of a state sales tax backed by Welsh will vote for Wallace in an attempt to embarrass the Indiana governor.

Wisconsin Tally

Wallace captured 25 per cent of the total vote and 33 per cent of the Democratic vote in the Wisconsin presidential primary four weeks ago. Many Wisconsin Republicans voted in the Democratic primary. Indiana Republicans can do the same.

However, a known Republican voting in the Democratic primary can be challenged and required to sign an affidavit pledging November support to the party. Democrats say they'll make challenges.

State Republican leaders urged GOP voters to stay in their own backyard where a bid by Sen. Barry Goldwater for the preference vote has been overshadowed by the Welsh-Wallace battle.

If, as expected, Goldwater beats Harold E. Stassen and lesser-known opponents in the GOP primary, he undoubtedly will get the states 32 Republican votes. But Democratic leaders made it plain last week that even if Wallace should win, he would have little hope of getting the state's 51 votes at the Democratic convention.

Write-in votes are not permitted in Indiana. Estimates are that up to 500,000 voters will take part in each party's primary.

In Ohio, Rep. Robert Taft Jr. and Sen. Stephen M. Young are favored to win the Republican and Democratic nominations for the Senate seat held by Young. But there are some imponderables.

Taft, son of the late "Mr. Republican" Sen. Robert A. Taft, has encountered stiff opposition from Secretary of State Ted Brown, a veteran vote-getter in Ohio politics. Brown has campaigned as being more conservative than young Taft and as an opponent of the civil rights bill for which Taft voted in the House.

Missing Opponent

Young, 75 Monday, is up against the man who isn't there. Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. entered the Democratic primary fight in his political debut, then withdrew when a head injury was slow in healing. But his name is still on the ballot.

Another political neophyte, Bud Wilkinson, gets his baptism of fire in the Oklahoma Republican Senate primary. The former University of Oklahoma football coach and athletic director has opposition from former State Chairman Forrest Beall and Thomas J. Harris, strong backer of a right-to-work proposal which also is on the ballot. Wilkinson has declined to take a stand on the right-to-work amendment.

Wilkinson's political plunge shares attention with the Democratic Senate race in Oklahoma. Sen. J. Howard Edmondson, appointed to fill the vacancy of the late Sen. Robert S. Kerr, has stiff opposition from state Sen. Fred Harris and former Gov. Raymond Gary.

Alabama Democrats will decide whether a slate of 10 presidential electors pledged to the party's national nominee or an unpledged slate will be on the November general election ballot. Wallace is backing an unpledged slate.

Florida voters will choose Democratic and Republican nominees for governor to succeed Gov. Farris Bryant, a Democrat, who cannot by law seek a second term. Six Democrats, including four past or present state legislators and the mayors of Jacksonville and Miami, are in the field. Sen. Spessard L. Holland is opposed by Bailey Odham in his Democratic primary bid for a fourth term.

Unopposed

The major candidates in New Mexico are unopposed. For governor, it is Democratic incumbent Jack M. Campbell, seeking a second term, and Republican Merle H. Tucker. For senator it is the incumbent, Republican Edwin L. Mechem, and Democratic Rep. Joseph M. Montoya. There is a contest for the Democratic nomination to the House seat Montoya s giving up.

District of Columbia voters will decide mostly local party issues.

Republican voters will choose 58 convention delegates in Ohio, pledged to favorite son Gov. James A. Rhodes, nine nominally uncommitted delegates will be picked in the District of Columbia.

Delegates to cast 38 Democratic convention votes, all pledged to support Wallace, will be elected in Alabama. In Ohio and the District of Columbia slates of delegates to cast 58 and 16 votes respectively are supporting Johnson.

State News Roundup

10th Day Of Fast In Jail

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — The Rev. Clayton K. Hewett continued his so-called, self-imposed fast Monday in protest against the imprisonment of civil rights demonstrators at nearby Chester.

The Rev. Mr. Hewett, white rector of the Church of the Atonement (Episcopal) at Morton, was arrested April 24 during demonstrations in Chester. He has refused to leave the Delaware County prison Annex until all demonstrators have been freed, even though $1,000 bail has been raised for him.

Meanwhile, prison officials report, he subsists on juices and vitamin pills. He has taken no solid food for 19 days.

The Rev. Mr. Hewett and others arrested in the Chester demonstrations were brought here, the county seat, because the Chester city jail is too small.

Chester Rights Groups Divorced

CHESTER, Pa. (AP)—Phillip H. Savage, tri-state secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said Monday his organization has dissociated itself from the Chester Committee for Freedom Now in this city's civil rights struggle.

Savage said the decision to end the association was made in Harrisburg Sunday at a state conference of the NAACP. He said this was done "because we could not rely on that organization's position and because of prior differences."

The Chester Committee for Freedom Now was formed last year by Stanley Branche to combat alleged de facto segregation in the public schools and in the city government.

Savage said the split means the NAACP "will no longer provide legal or financial assistance" to the committee. He added, however, that demonstrators who belong to the CFFN and were arresed as a result of past demonstrations will still be helped by the NAACP in their legal efforts to be released.

Bower Appeal Under Study

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—U. S. District Court Judge Ralph C. Body has taken under advisement an appeal for freedom or at least a new trial by John J. Bower, of Jersey Shore, Pa., now serving a life sentence in Eastern State Penitentiary here on a murder conviction.

Bower was convicted and sentenced to life for the murder of Ralph W. Cook, of Allenwood, R.D. 1, in 1959. Since then he has appealed many times.

Unions Win 10 Cent Pay Hike

PHILADELPHIA (AP) -- Union members will get an across-the-board wage increase of 10 cents an hour this year as the result of a new, three-year contract agreed upon by Merck & Co., a drug firm, and the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers, AFL-CIO.

A company announcement this week also said skilled tradesmen will receive an additional three cents an hour. More than 1,000 workers at the firm's Merck, Sharp & Dohme division in suburban West Point are represented by the union's local 8-86. A total of 2,300 production and maintenance workers throughout the company are affected.

12 Hurt In Chain Crash

WILKES-BARRE (AP) -- Twelve persons were injured in a chain reaction accident on the Sans Souci Parkway in nearby Hanover Township late Sunday night. Six automobiles and a motorcycle were involved in the mishap.

Six of the injured were admitted to local hospitals while the other six were treated at Mercy Hospital and discharged.

Hanover Township police said the accident occurred when a car struck the divider and overturned. Following cars were unable to stop and piled up behind it, police said.

Date Set

POTTSVILLE, Pa. (AP) -- Judge Charles W. Staudenmeier Monday ordered John C. Berkery, Ralph Staino Jr., and Robert Poulson to appear in Schuylkill County Court on May 18 for sentencing for the John B. Rich burglary.

After sentencing, the three may appeal to the state Superior Court in a further attempt to void their convictions.

November Election Will Test Johnson's Coattails

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — The Congressional elections of 1964 may demonstrate once and for all whether the "coattails" of a strong Presidential candidate are enough to carry large numbers of men into office on the majority party ticket.

Elections of recent years, in which voters have demonstrated an increasing tendency to split their tickets and vote "for the man" rather than "for the party," suggest that the "coattails" phenomenon may be dead. But if President Johnson wins election in November by anything approaching currently projected margins, the landslide might carry many other Democrats into office and resurrect "coattails" as a major factor in the country's politics.

Current Outlooks

Congressional Quarterly's spring round-up on all 435 U.S. House elections suggests that without strong coattail effects, there would be little net change in the current House party line-up of 257 Democrats, 178 Republicans. If the 38 districts listed as "toss-ups" in the CQ survey were to split evenly between the parties, the Democrats would come up with a nominal two-seat national gain.

In a non-Presidential election year, such early estimates, based on the actual candidates and political trends in each district of the country, may be remarkably accurate. CQ's early spring 1962 House election outlook was only five seats off from the final result in November of that year.

But if the "coattail" phenomenon reasserts itself in 1964, the early spring outlooks could be thrown seriously askew. If all 38 "toss-up" or "doubtful" seats were to go Democratic, the Democrats would gain 21 seats for a new total of 278. If Democrats also captured a portion of the 30 districts now classified as "leaning" (not "safe") Republican, their total could approach or exceed the party's postwar record of 283 seats won in the 1958 elections.

Historical Precedents

The basic question is whether the voters in 1964 will be voting as Americans traditionally voted up through World War II, or whether they will vote more as they did in the Eisenhower years and in 1960.

The traditional pattern was for the winning Presidential candidate to pol a slightly greater percentage of the popular vote than did the House candidates of his party. This phenomenon occurred in every Presidential election between 1904 and 1944.

In 1928, for instance, Herbert Hoover won 59 percent of the vote and GOP House candidates 57 percent. In 1932, FDR won 59 percent of the vote and Democratic House candidates 57 percent. In 1936, the FDR and Democratic House percentages were 62 and 59 percent respectively; in 1940, 55 and 53 percent; in 1944, 54 and 52 percent.

But in 1948 the pattern broke. Harry Truman was reelected President with 52 percent of the vote, but Democratic House candidates polled 53 percent. In 1952 and in 1956 Dwight Eisenhower won 55 and 58 percent of the vote, but Republican House candidates lagged far behind at 50 and 49 percent of the vote. In 1960 John F. Kennedy won 50 percent of the two-party vote but saw Democratic House candidates outpoll him easily, winning 55 percent of the vote.

House Shifts Minimized

These vote percentage trends have also been reflected in actual House seat gains or losses. Between 1890 and 1948, the party winning the Presidency scored an average gain of 32 seats in every Presidential election. But since 1948, such radical changes have practically disappeared. Republicans gained 22 seats with Eisenhower's election in 1952, but actually lost 2 seats when Eisenhower won re-election by a landslide in 1956. And in 1960 Kennedy won the Presidency at the same time his party was dropping 20 seats in the House.

Suggested as reasons for the unusual voting patterns of recent years have been a variety of factors, ranging from the unique Truman, Eisenhower and Kennedy personalities to the fact that no great disquieting factors — such as waves of unemployment, economic recession or war — have racked the nation to create the strong political passions which totally discredit one party or the other. And it seems certain that the increasingly educated post war electorate often prides itself in its ability to vote independently, discerning "splitting" tickets among the best candidates.

These new theories would be in for serious re-examinations, however, if President Johnson were to sweep scores of new Democratic Congressmen into office with him in 1964. Thus the 1964 Congressional elections may reveal the shape of American politics for many elections to come.

The elections may also have a lot to say about the Republican party's survival as a major U.S. political force in the mid-sixties. Already 79 seats short of a majority in the House (and even worse off, proportionately, in the Senate), the Republicans could be reduced to a near-impotent minority if the voters go all-out for LBJ and refuse to "split" their ballots this November.

Hectic World In Short

For Annie Frew, "getting to the church on time" meant giving her twin brother a kidney.

The 21 year-old twins underwent kidney operations this weeks so that Graham could live.

The operations — so far —appear successful.

And Annie was the one that pushed for the operation.

After all, she declared, Graham has to give me away at the altar.

The mother said that Annie's greatest wish was to have her brother "well enough. . .even if he were in a wheelchair so that he could give his twin away in marriage. The marriage will take place in London.

And then there were two. . .'

After spending 40 days and nights atop a smokestack, in Naha, Okinawa, a bus driver climbed down. Hidemasa Oshiro, 37, an officer in the union used smokestack - sitting to protest what he feels are unfair working conditions.

This means that two men are still protesting by slaying on the smokestack.

In a departure from tradition, Haverford College in Pennsylvania, has presented the college with $3,000 -not for a class gift but to help raise a fund to raise faculty salaries.

And after all that fuss!

A London newspaper reported, Sunday that a Leningrad court has found Soviet navy Capt. Yevgeny Ivanov did not have an affair with British prostitute Christine Keeler.

The News of the World said the court ruled Ivanov only used his contacts with Christine and Dr. Stephen Ward to meet influential Britons.

The newspaper said the court also ruled that Ivanov's superiors in the Soviet intelligence service knew what he was doing and approved of his spy technique.

He has been restored to active duty in Leningrad.

Newsmen won't be able to spot any trends in the president's mail. White House press office laid down a new rule in the aftermath of President Johnson's pulling of dog ears: No report on how the White House mail is running--on anything.

Press Secretary George Reedy has been asked to produce information on what the mail was turning up with respect to Johnson's hoisting his two beagle pups by the ears and letting them yelp — an action that brought protests from some dog experts and dog lovers.

Reedy said he would see what could be done about checking on the mail, then told newsmen later: "We are not going to characterize the mail, quantitatively, qualitatively, pro or con."

The Negroes won another battle in their fight for equality in the state of Virginia.

This week a three-judge federal court threw out sections of the Virginia constitution and laws that require racial designation on state poll tax lists, voter registrations and property records.

The court ruled that the parts of constitution and state laws on the books are in conflict with the 14th amendment.

Scientists do worry. Maybe they have reason to and maybe they like to.

The latest report which gives incentive to more worrying for the worrying crowd is this:

"Scientists say there is a chance the earth may be struck with H-bomb-like force by one of a group of mysterious celestial objects.

Incidentally this could happen tomorrow or sometime within the next millions of years.

The warning comes from Dr. James R. Arnold of the University of California.

YORK, Pa. (AP) — Morton Rosen of Harrisburg was elected president of the Pennsylvania Junior Chamber of Commerce. He succeeds Richard L. Merk of Williamsport.

Scranton Boosters Led By 4 Young Men

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four young men -almost all novices in the game of presidential politics—are leading the drive to make Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania the Republican nominee this election year.

They are Rep. Richard S. Schweiker, 37, R-Pa.; William Kiesling, 28, the governor's assistant; Craig Truax, 35, chairman, and Richard C. Peet, 35.

Youth pervades the Scranton drive for a couple of simple reasons:

1. Scranton has not announced his candidacy and maintains he does not want the nomination. For this reason, the old Republican professionals are staying away, afraid to be caught out on a limb.

2. At 46, Scranton is the youngest of the Republican possibilities this year. This naturally attracts young men to his side.

Keisling, who comes from the governor's home city of Scranton, Pa., has been with Scranton longer than anyone else in Pennsylvania politics.

Scranton made his first bid for public office in 1960 when he won a seat in Congress. Keisling, a Scranton newspaperman, joined the candidate's staff in that campaign.

He became special assistant to Scranton in Congress, then served as public relations director in the Scranton campaign for governor in 1962, and was named assistant to the governor three weeks after Scranton's election.

Schweiker is one of the men who helped persuade Scranton to run for governor in 1962.

Schweiker, after 10 years in business, came to Congress in 1960, the same year Scranton did.

Schweiker had to buck the organization in his district to win. He defeated the regular candidate in a primary to win the nomination in a suburban Philadelphia district. He is known as a moderate Republican who sometimes differs with the party leadership in Congress.

Truax, elected Republican state chairman the day before Scranton was inaugurated as governor, was Scranton's choice for the job and serves as his representative in GOP state affair.

Musmanno Cuts Blatt's Lead

PHILADELPHIA (AP) Genevieve Blatt's lead over Jusice Michael Musmanno for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senator dropped below 3,000 Monday in a compilation of the official or unofficial count. All absentee ballots remain to be counted.

With all but 10 precincts complete, the unofficial count last week had given Miss Blatt 455,099 to 451,955 for Musmanno, or a margin of 3,144.

In the official count Monday in Lackawanna County Musmanno picked up 257 votes. In the official count from Union County Miss Blatt lost 20. The official figures were the same as the unofficial in this contest otherwise in Snyder, Union and Northumberland counties.

Thus, Manno's net gain for the day was 277 votes, cutting Miss Blatt's margin to 2,867.

The absentee ballot in all 67 counties will be tabulated starting this Friday. Most counties will count the official vote at the same time. It may be May 18 before complete official returns, with the absentee ballot, are available from the entire state.

County Learns '68 Role For Child Welfare Picture

STROUDSBURG — Louis Marmo of the State Dept. of Welfare yesterday told the Monroe County Commissioners that the county will have to take over some child welfare functions by 1968.

But it was nothing the commissioners didn't already know.

Marmo came to Stroudsburg to explain some of the provisions of the recent Child Welfare Act and found that the commissioners had already discussed the act and had talked over ways to implement it locally.

To clarify and further explain it, however, Marmo told the commissioners:

"In 1962 the federal government amended the social security law and asked Congress for $25 to $50 million for child welfare.

More Responsibility

"This year $35 million was allotted to the states.

"In order for the states to get the money, the government put more responsibility on them, and the states reciprocated by passing laws which made them eligible.

"In 1963 Pennsylvania amended the welfare code and eliminated County Institutional Districts—every county should have a public child welfare agency, whether county-run or serviced by private agency.

"Also, the 1963 amendment made the money given to the counties for this purpose payable in advance. In Monroe, $3,061.23 has been paid twice so far this year.

"In 1963 the state appropriated $2,107,000 for child welfare; when additional counties came under the plan, it appropriated another $500,000.

"Those counties with their own welfare agencies receive both federal and state funds. The state is allowed to pay up to 50 per cent of the cost of the cost of county-run welfare plans—but as of today, it doesn't have enough money to reach 50 per cent.

"In Pennsylvania, the federal government gave $700,000 toward this purpose in 1963.

Purchase Service

"Monroe County is on a purchase service agreement with private child welfare agencies.

"By January 1, 1968, every county will have its own agency —it must have an intake, screening and referral service and a protective service.

"Intake, screening and referral is just what the name implies. Anyone with a welfare problem will come to that service. The office will register them, screen them, and refer them to the proper agency for help.

"Protective service is just that—it takes care of neglected children.

"There are 12,000 children under 18 years old in Monroe County," Marmo concluded.

Commissioner John Price said:

"We have two private agencies in Monroe County, the Children's Aid and the Family Service. How will they be affected if the county takes over some welfare functions?"

Marmo answered:

"Having both county-run services and private services in the same community usually strengthens the welfare care—it's good to have both.

"The county takes over some functions and the private agen*cies become even stronger in the* remaining areas."

Commissioner Stuart Pipher said:

"Could we qualify for federal aid by hiring an advisory committee executive to coordinate all welfare services? This was what we were thinking. We also thought we might institute the two county-run services and buy the rest of the welfare services from the private agencies.

"Could we qualify for federal aid by doing this—and how soon could we set it up?"

Could Qualify

"Yes, you could qualify for federal aid by doing this, and you could set it up this year if you wished. An advisory committee should have 15-20 welfare oriented people on it, such as ministers, welfare people, etc."

Pipher said, "How could we set this up?"

"You must notify the Dept. of Welfare that you want to establish the two necessary county-run agencies. Then you must recruit a director as welfare coordinator. Minimum salary for this job is $6,090, and you should try to get someone with a Master's degree."

"You won't get anyone with an M.A. for that salary," solicitor Russell Mervine said.

"These jobs, including case workers, office workers, etc., come under civil service," Marmo went on. "Someday I'll have to come up here and talk over public assistance with you. By the way, mental health doesn't come under this program. This is just for children."

Pipher said:

"The mental health organizations feel they would ultimately come under the overall welfare program."

"I don't know enough about them to say," Marmo concluded.

Commissioners Okay $500 For Third Street Park

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Commissioners — including ailing chairman Stanley B. Rader—yesterday approved $500 for grading of the proposed Third St. Park in Stroudsburg.

Edward Hess, civil engineer, and Art DePue, contractor, told the commissioners that the playground area is criss-crossed with old foundations and huge slabs of concrete.

"There were a lot of houses there once and the foundations come to ground level. Also, there are a series of concrete walls six feet deep and about five by 10 feet on the side," DePue said.

It was decided that DePue would crack off the tops of the foundations and blocks and grade over them with top soil. The contract for $500 for the work was drawn up there and approved by the board.

Open Bids May 21

Hess said that specifications for fencing around the playground area are ready, and the board said it would open bids on May 21. The bids will thus be invited this week.

In other business, the board talked of moving the Tuberculosis Society and Veteran's Administration offices into 609 Sarah St. after remodeling. The current location of the offices on Sarah St. just in back of the courthouse will be torn down to make a parking lot.

The board discussed problems of tabulating write-in votes.

King Beers, executive director of the Monroe County Redevelopment Authority told the board that his organization will ask the state for $40,624—the state's share of the S. Courtland St. urban renewal project.

Cost $324,000

Beers said that the net project cost is $324,000, and that the state pays one-eighth, the local borough (East Stroudsburg) pays one-eighth, and the federal government pays three-fourths.

He added that East Stroudsburg has $72,000 worth of excess flood control credits that can be applied against the S. Courtland St. project—this takes care of the local cost.

"We will ask the state for the $40,624, but ask for only $8,937 in cash and the rest in credits for future borough use," Beers said.

The commissioners decided to change their second meeting day this week from Thursday to Friday because they will be required to open absentee ballots Friday.

Judge Denies Ryckman Petition On Drinking Case

STROUDSBURG — President Judge Fred W. Davis yesterday denied the petition of an East Stroudsburg man who claims he was illegally arrested on charges of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor on Jan. 24.

The petition, presented for Robert W. Ryckman, alleges the defendant was improperly arrested and charged by John Banjan, a Stroudsburg policeman.

Ryckman was arrested on a warrant issued by Justice of the Peace Floyd Kellogg of Stroudsburg. The petition, filed by Atty. Alex Bensinger of Stroudsburg, claims the warrant was sworn to on false information.

The petition states:

"The arrest of the defendant by the prosecutor was illegal in that the defendant was not operating his motor vehicle at the time of the arrest, which motor vehicle was not operable at the time.

"The only basis on which the prosecutor could charge the defendant with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor was the fact that the defendant, under protest, exhibited his owner's card to the prosecutor, as the defendant was standing near a pole next to the defendant's motor vehicle.

"The warrant issued in the above entitled cause should be quashed, as the aforesaid information was made on the oath of the prosecutor as though he were an eyewitness, when it should have stated the name of the informant, if any, the facts forming the basis for the information and belief in the probable cause of the charge alleged in the information."

Not In Uniform

The petition further states that Baujan was not in his proper uniform at the time of arrest and he did not exhibit a badge or other sign of authority before taking the defendant into custody.

"The arrest of the defendant *was illegal as the defendant re*quested a physical examination by his personal physician, Dr. F. W. Shafer of Stroudsburg, which request was refused by the prosecutor, John Baujan.

"And by refusing to allow the defendant to be examined and treated by his own physician, the prosecutor to be examined and treated by his own physician, the prosecutor precluded the defendant's physician from giving him a blood test, which test is recognized as a valid test of intoxication under the provisions of the vehicle code," the petition says.

It further states that Ryckman had been under treatment for two years for an ailment with similar symptoms to intoxication.

Charcoal Hearth Fined For Letting Minors In

STROUDSBURG — The two owners of The Charcoal Hearth, located on Rt. 611 near Stroudsburg and one of their waiters pleaded guilty yesterday in Monroe County Court to charges of permitting minors to frequent a licensed liquor establishment.

The trio was ordered to pay a total of $500 in fines and the cost of prosecution by President Judge Fred W. Davis. James R. Marsh, Monroe County district attorney, presented the case for the commonwealth.

The two owners, Florence and Nathan Sheinbaum, admitted to two counts each and the waiter, Nicholas LaPenna, to one count. They were fined $100 on each count.

Benjamin Ussef, a state Liquor Control Board enforcement officer, testified agents found minors on the premises on May 8, and April 17, both in 1963.

Several Complaints

Marsh told the court that his office has had several complaints about the bar which is located on Rt. 611 about four miles north of Stroudsburg. He said, however, the LCB has never been able to find any minor actually drinking on the premesis.

Atty. Maxwell Cohen of Stroudsburg, counsel for the defendants, asked the court to be lenient "because the Schneinbaum's are trying their best to keep minors out of the place."

Judge gave the defendants until May 9, to pay the fines and the court costs.

The Charcoal Hearth case was one of eight brought before the court yesterday by Marsh. Others were:

William H. Miller, 31, of 323 Crystal St., East Stroudsburg, was sent to the Easton Diag*nostic Center in Philadelphia,* for a sentence of not less than one year and not more than four on charges of corrupting the morals of a minor.

Miller admitted to having intercourse with a 12-year-old Stroudsburg girl. Miller also admitted sending the girl ob*scene and vulgar letters.*

He was arrested Feb. 25 by Stroudsburg Police Chief John Tretheway. Judge Davis also ordered Miller to pay a $100 fine and court costs. Atty. Samuel Newman of Stroudsburg was the court-appointed lawyer for Miller.

—Lewis S. Daley, 68, of Hamilton Square pleaded guilty to an assault and battery charge, was given a suspended sentence and placed on probation for one year. Daley admitted punching his landlady, Helen Fenical, also of Hamilton Square.

Judge Davis also ordered Daley to pay court costs and $60 for medical bills incurred by Mrs. Fenical. He will pay the money in $20-a-month installments.

—Harold O'Connor, 20, of Scranton was sent to Monroe County jail in default of a $200 fine and $38 court costs. He pleaded guilty to operating an automobile during a period of suspension. In addition to the fine and costs, O'Connor was placed on six months probation.

O'Connor will stay in jail until he either pays his fine or until his six months is up. State trooper Thomas P. McManus, from the Mt. Pocono sub-station, was the arresting officer.

—John Sullivan of Minisink Hills was freed from the county jail and placed on probation for the balance of his one-year term involving a non-support case. He had been in jail on contempt charges since Nov. 12, 1963.

Sullivan told the court he had immediate employment. After freeing the man, Judge Davis said, "Now John you and I have been working on this problem for a long time and it is going to depend on you." Sullivan is behind in his support payments to his wife and children.

—John Matiskella, 34, of Stroudsburg, was placed on probation for the balance of a 23-month sentence at a parole violator.

State Student Loans

The Scranton administration has asked more than 600 banks in Pennsylvania to participate in the new state program for loans to as many as 5,000 students who may be helped to get a college education.

Governor Scranton gave the new program a generous birthday present when he turned over about $75,000 in impounded commissions on state insurance to the Student Loan Fund.

That money, known as "the insurance gravy train," has heretofore been used as political patronage by the administration in power which handed commissions to favored brokers with political rhyme but no practical reason.

The governor's dramatic order and the subsequent decision of the General State Authority to pay its accumulated and future insurance commissions to the Student Loan Fund have put the spotlight on the new loan program. It can certainly spend the money with more benefit to the people of Pennsylvania.

The 1963 legislature passed a $425,000 appropriation to guarantee repayment of loans by banks to students and the voters of the state approved the fund at the polls in November, 1963. Now the program is getting under way.

Local banks must first agree to participate in the program.

Then students who are residents of Pennsylvania and have finished at least one year of full-time undergraduate or graduate study in an approved United States institution may apply for loans on the basis of financial need.

Eligible students may apply at local participating banks (still un-named) or by writing Jack Critchfield, Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency, Education Building, Harrisburg.

Undergraduates may receive up to $1,000 a year up to a maximum of $5,000. While in college, students who get the loans must pay back only $1.25 for each $100 borrowed every three months.

After leaving college, students must pay back their loans over a five-year period, unless they are in military or Peace Corps service. Interest is five per cent, with repayment beginning six months after leaving school.

The program should make it possible for every college student who has the brains and ability to get into college and stay there and the good fortune to pay for at least one year of education to be assured of finishing his studies.

The first year requirement may severly reduce the number of applicants, but the program is a valuable aid for students today who find it increasingly hard either to pay or to work their way through college.

The governor has given the new program a good push with his gravy train decision. Now it is up to the banks, the students and colleges to make the program work.

Billion Dollar Bet Pays Off

The Johnson administration and economists who argued that the $11.5 billion tax cut passed by Congress this Spring would not cut government revenues are winning their bet.

Federal tax receipts for the first quarter of 1964 were reported yesterday a healthy $1.5 billion ahead of revenues in the same quarter of 1963.

Total receipts were reported at $24 billion, a pace which would bring in enough money to nearly balance the $98 billion federal budget in 1964-65. (Other government spending takes the actual budget figure over $100 billion.)

The government is of course riding the crest of the longest continuous expansion of the American economy in this century.

Business and corporate profits are rising steadily to record highs. More people are making more money and are spending it.

There was considerable doubt in everyone's mind about the effect of a $11.4 billion tax cut spread over two years.

But the first economic report from Washington indicates that the eggheads were right for once—a tax cut at the right time can actually produce more federal tax revenue because it stimulates business and raises sales and profits.

Many big businessmen agreed with the economists on this point. Many doubters may be proved right at the end of two years. But today, it looks as though the federal tax cut was good for everybody, including the government.

Prank Turns Blank

By George Dixon

WASHINGTON—Two weeks ago, Rep. Joe Pool of Texas sent a press release to every one of the 1577 accredited newspaper, radio, television, and news magazine correspondents in Washington. Then he sat back in his oversize chair and waited for a dam of mirth to break.

He waited in vain. Not one of the 759 newspaper men, 130 newspaper women, 300 radio and TV newscasters, and 388 news magazine reporters, apparently read his handout closely enough to tap its delightfully-subtle irony.

There is, of course, an explanation of why Pool's prank ran into such a blank reception. All the correspondents upon whom it was played receive so many handouts daily they can't find time to read more than one out of 20, if that. They peruse only those that open with an attention-grabber. Pool's purposely didn't.

Also, they weren't looking for a man of his stature to clown it up. His stature is remarkable. He is only 5 feet 6 inches tall, but weighs better than 230 pounds. Supporters contend he is built just right for his title, which is Congressman-at-large.

Mr. Pool is excessively aware of the stupefying volume of paperwork in Governmental Washington. He has the most populous district of any Representative, 10,122,000 (the whole State of Texas which, to quote President Johnson, also a Texan, "is the largest State south of the Arctic Circle"). A visitor can barely edge sideways into Pool's office because of Pool and the sacks of mail.

He receives upwards of 10,000 letters a week.

Now for his loaded press release that failed to explode:

"Texas Congressman - at-large Joe Pool announced a hearing which could change the nature of things in Washington.

"Rep. Pool, a member of the House Civil Service and Post Office Committee, said that of hearings on excessive Federal paperwork.'

"After completion of the hearings, voluminous and excessive reports, running to thousands of pages, will be printed."

I am very nervous an' timid today. Tomorrow I vote for the first time in my life.

Heretofore we've always been disenfranchised in the District of Columbia. At long will begin 'an extensive series last we are becoming second class citizens. They're moving us up from third class.

We haven't been allowed to go all the way up to first class citizens. In recognizing our political existence at all, Congress decreed we could vote only for President and Vice President — and the appurtenances thereof.

Tomorrow we will be allowed to vote in the party primaries — for District national committeemen and committeewomen, National convention delegates, alternates, and city committeemen for both Republican and Democratic parties.

This may not seem so much to fellow Americans who can vote for their own mayor, city councilmen, and dogcatcher. But it's as big a breakthrough to us as getting James Meredith into the University of Mississippi was to the forces of righteousness.

I've never been inside a polling booth. The nearest thing I've ever seen to one is a $2 mutual machine. Incidentally, horseplaying Washingtonians may be interested to learn that the machines for vote and tote operate on the same principle, and often are made by the same people.

The District Commissioners, who run Washington for Congress, must have realized how nervous I'd be about exercising my civil rights for the first time. It has made tranquilization possible.

It is traditional throughout America to ban sales of liquor on election day. But the Comtion for our ballot debut.

They're letting the bars and missioners have waived tradi- liquor stores stay open.

The Pennsylvania Story

No Undisputed Boss

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG — It's been a long time since either major political party in Pennsylvania came under the thumb of "one man boss rule"—and it isn't likely now, the past week's primary results notwithstanding.

One wire service's "assumptive statement (not "report") from Philadelphia (100 miles from state political headquarters) that Pennsylvania's U. S. Senator Joseph S. Clark emerged from the Primary as "undisputed boss of Pennsylvania Democrats" drew comments of "naive" and "appallingly uninformed' from aides around Democratic State Headquarters here in Harrisburg.

In actuality there hasn't been an "undisputed boss" of either party in the Keystone State for nearly the past quarter century. Several overly ambitious souls have tried it —only to be slapped down in the crisis or showdown.

The simple fact is that in both parties today there are too many "arrogant independents" (as the so-called would-be one-man "bosses" have phrased it) within the ruling echelons of both parties to permit any single individual to really be boss; there are too many outspoken chin-jutting factions these days to permit any single individual to crack the whip as a "boss."

Today you have influential —or the "most influential"— leaders that make up a composite "boss" as opposed to the single ruling paunch-and-vest that was indeed oftimes the party dictator of yesteryear.

As for Joseph Sill Clark, unquestionably as a result of the balloting a week ago, he will emerge as a much more influential voice in Democratic policy deliberations than ever before, but as for "boss"—any dictates he might have in mind can be killed in a split-second fly by the Democratic State Committee.

Senator Clark's rise — and unquestionably it is just that —stems from the fact that in the past Primary he was the only really ranking Democrat in Pennsylvania to back the U. S. senatorial candidacy of Genevieve Blatt, who at this point has nudged the organization-backed candidate, State Justice Michael Musmanno (the absentee ballots will finally determine the winner).

But as for Mr. Clark becoming the ruling mogul, the "boss" of Pennsylvania Democrats — you just don't do that from far away Washington. It's been tried in the past incidentally in both parties—and in each instance the movement literally died aborning.

The latest real abortive attempt to one-man rule the Democratic Party in the Keystone State brewed during the tenure of the late Congressman and Philadelphia Democratic leader William J. Green, Jr., who came about as close to accomplishing the deed as anyone of contemporary note.

But even this failed on the statewide level as dissident rebuffs clipped his wings. For example in the Legislature where not too many years ago the one-man party bosses controlled party lawmakers like puppets, the politically shrewd and brilliant Mr. Green repeatedly met his downfall as irate upstate party lawmaking independents said in effect, "nuts" to his legislative demands.

The same principle — in the crisis — carried through insofar as party policies and candidates were concerned His wishes were abided by in many, many instances; in many they were not.

This then is the pattern for the equally smart, brilliant and dapper Senator Joseph Sill Clark, who knows very well he won't become (and has stated he doesn't want to become) "boss" of the Democratic Party in Pennsylvania.

He will indeed become a "stronger" and much more highly influential voice in party deliberations and strategy—but not anything approaching the "boss" of the show.

But — perhaps the biggest out-of-character bit of the entire affair was the wire service attempt to "make" the news on its own— instead of simply "reporting" hard news for which "news" columns are designed!

Off The Record:

—By BOB CLARK

No Sure Bet

There is no such thing as a sure bet. Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona pin-pointed this in a recent visit to the Poconos.

Udall, brother of Stewart - Secretary of Interior — was a star for Arizona University when the western college basketball team received a bid to the National Invitational Tournament in New York's Madison Square Garden 1946.

Arizona had a topflight five in those days and had compiled a 25-1 record to warrant the NIT bid. Unluckily, however, the Udall's team drew fabulous Kentucky in the first round of the tournament.

When Arizona arrived in New York City, an uncle of one of the players visited the hotel before game time. "How good is your team?" he asked his nephew.

The player pointing out Arizona's great seasonal record countered, "We've got a pretty good club."

"Well," the uncle said, "the point spread is 20. Do you think you could keep Kentucky under that figure?"

The Arizona courtman countered, "No team in the country is 20 points better than us."

This last statement assured the uncle and he went out and placed $5,000 on Arizona.

Udall laughed when he told the end of the story. "Alex Groza, Ralph Beard and their teammates hammered us that night by more than 20 points."

As an afterthought, the U.S. Congressman said, "I don't think the player came in contact with his uncle since."

Udall was quite a player. Following the end of his collegiate career at Arizona, Morris joined the Denver Nuggets of the AAU League — the loop that helps the Olympics get their best players.

While at Denver he completed his law education to become one of the wittiest barmen in the western States.

Incidentally the reason Udall flies his own plane is that districts are so far apart in Arizona that it would take days for him to get around to his constituents. One sortie that Udall must make on the campaign trail is a distance comparable to a journey from Poconos to Boston — 7 hours by car.

The Allen-Scott Report

LBJ Victory

Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — President Johnson's resounding effectiveness in persuading Congress to approve his legislative proposals appears to be doing equally well for his highly controversial foreign aid program.

House Democratic leaders have assured the White House of a smashing first-round victory when the Foreign Affairs Committee votes on the administration's $3.4 billion foreign aid authorization request next week.

Representative Thomas Morgan, D-Pa., chairman and the leaders' foreign aid spokesman, told the President his committee will vote an estimated $3.2 billion — keeping the program cutbacks at the smallest amount in the past five years.

He stressed that the $200 million reductions would be limited to the $2.4 billion economic assistance, with the administration's $1 billion request for military aid being left untouched.

The minor cutbacks in economic aid will be made in the President's contingency fund, which will be cut from $150 to $75 million. Other reductions will be voted in the Development Loan Fund and the Supporting Assistance Program, which total $1.8 billion.

According to Morgan, committee supporters of the President's program have the votes to block any cutbacks in the Alliance for Progress Fund ($600 million); Technical Cooperation & Development Grants ($224.6 million); International Organization & Programs ($134 million); and the other smaller aid programs.

He advised the President that once his committee clears the bill, the Democratic leaders plan to push for swift passage in the House, as their pools now show they can beat back any efforts to make major reductions.

The Missing Witness — This unexpected good news was given President Johnson when the committee decided to wind up its hearings this week without requesting the return of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge to testify on ways of stepping up the war in South Viet Nam.

Representative Morgan ruled against Lodge's recall after a series of private consultations with the President and Secretary of State Rusk.

They advised Morgan that Lodge had not asked to return, and saw no reason to seek his testimony as requested by Representative Edna F. Kelly, D-N.Y. Mrs. Kelly, who isn't happy with the way the war is going, asked that Lodge be brought back so committee members could question him first-hand.

As a compromise solution, the President and Morgan agreed that if Lodge should want to brief Congress later, he would be recalled and given a hearing at a special session of the House committee.

The question of whether Lodge will be recalled to testify before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is still very much up in the air.

While there have been committee discussions about seeking Lodge's recommendations, Senator J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman, has informed the President that no formal request has been made by any of the members to have the ambassador testify.

Robert Mullen, the mastermind behind Lodge's unannounced political campaign, is privately discouraging any move among GOP senators to seek his recall at this time. He told one committeeman, "The Ambassador has no desire to return now. He is happy to stay in Saigon until late June."

Although Senate and House Democratic leaders refrain from linking Lodge with the foreign aid bill in their public statements, Speaker John McCormack (Mass.) told a visitor there isn't a private discussion on foreign aid in which Lodge's name doesn't come up.

"Everybody wants to know when Lodge plans his spectacular return," reported the Speaker. "While all expect it, nobody seems to know just when."

Coming Headlines — Major foreign aid scandals in South Viet Nam are expected to stir up new opposition in the Senate to the President's aid request. Reports on investigations being conducted by the Agency for International Development in these three countries will not be completed until after the House votes. Already, the unannounced probes show that millions of dollars in U.S. funds and surplus food were mishandled or are missing. In Greece one high official fled the country after AID probers learned that $13 million could not be accounted for after being turned over to that country for the development of a central food and vegetable market. The project was never begun, and the Greek official is now believed to be in either Switzerland or France. . .In South Korea authorities running the local version of the Central Intelligence Agency have helped themselves to several million dollars of U.S. surplus military vehicles and other equipment without U.S. approval. They began their self-help program when the State Department abruptly cut off other supporting funds.

Dear Abby

On The Birds

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: "Knows My Birds" doesn't know much. The male of the species is handsomely bedecked with colorful plumage in order to lure the female during the mating season. The female is drab and plain so she'll not attract too much attention, thereby diverting her from her maternal responsibilities. It is just the opposite with the human annual, however. The female does the strutting, preening, chasing and ultimately the capturing. Although Nature originally made her plain and drab, she soon learned the tricks of padding, girdling, painting and trapping like no other animal on earth. But no amount of trickery could alter the biological laws. And the female must continue to endure the pregnancies and bear the young. Ho ho ho!

MALE

DEAR ABBY: Whoever signed himself "KNOWS MY BIRDS" certainly does not. We had an adorable little bluish green parakeet named DICKIE. He talked a blue streak. Apparently nobody told DICKIE that only male parakeets could talk because when DICKIE was two years old, "he" laid an egg. I thank you.

AMAZED

DEAR ABBY: Several weeks ago, a bird-watcher said in effect that the females were prettier than the males, but that they were useless. And you let him get away with it. Having given him one barrel about who laid the eggs, you should have let him have the other barrel and asked him if he had ever seen a pair of ring-necked pheasants, or wood cocks, or Kentucky cardinals, or ruby-throated hummingbirds, or indigo buntings. The males are marvelously colorful. The females are not. Nature colored the females protectively, to help perpetuate the species. Of course, male and female doves, chickadees, bluejays and many others are similarly marked. But I can think of no bird hereabouts among which the female is more attractive than the male.

BILL THE BIRD MAN

DEAR ABBY: No, no, no! You are wrong, wrong, wrong! The female of the feathered family is NOT more beautiful! The peacock is the gorgeous one. The peahen fades in with the background. The male cardinal is brilliant red, while the female is brownish with only slight tinges of red. The reason: The male must divert attention of a predator away from the nest, so the female can stay on the eggs, unnoticed. Now as for the female being more vocal: That is the prevailing manifestation of all females.

Really, Abby, you write a wonderful column, and when you wish, you can make strong men quail (hah!), but you deserve 60 lashes with an ostrich plume. It won't hurt, but you'll be tickled to death.

Speaking Of Your Health:

Babies Bored Before Birth

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Perhaps we have not given enough consideration to the problem of how the unborn infant amuses himself during all those tiresome months of waiting to be born.

There is one doctor who does seem to care, and who feels he has evidence to prove that more goes on inside those dark walls than has ever been suspected.

Dr. William Murphy, of Norfolk, Va., has reported an observation that may have more scientific charm than actual scientific value.

Dr. Murphy noticed the frequent occurrence of small discolorations on the forearms and wrists of newborn babies. These blister-like patches were not found on other parts of the infant's body.

Self-Inflicted

These were self-inflicted by the unborn child while still in the womb of the mother, Dr. Murphy concluded.

How did he arrive at these conclusions? He believes that during the latter part of pregnancy, the infants energetically suck on their hands and arms and thus produce these discolorations.

As soon as the infant is born, no further markings occur because the reflex action of sucking is satisfied by the breast or bottle.

Disappear Shortly

There is no injury to the child as a result of this activity, and the markings disappear shortly after birth.

It is understandable that the unborn infant, in his lonely boredom, might resort to this technique for whiling away the interminable time of enclosure.

High Blood Pressure Studies

A special type of high blood pressure, "essential hypertension" has resisted the scientific study of its real cause.

Heredity, emotional stress and endocrine disturbances have all been accused but never really indicted as the true cause.

Narrowed Passages

It is known that this type of high blood pressure occurs when the blood vessels of the body are narrowed by arteriosclerosis, by spasms, or by the chemicals, hormones, or adrenalin that circulate in the blood. But the exact cause of essential hypertension is unknown.

Not for long will the secret persist.

Intensive studies in research laboratories all over the world were presented at a "hypertension" symposium in Philadelphia. Some ideas were accepted, other rejected and still others returned for more critical evaluation.

The public must gather much hope from this kind of scientific attitude. The expert appraisal of all new ideas is done with complete objectivity to insure lasting value.

Markin Time

There is not much that I can keep.
Not good enough to stay awake,
And yet too good to go to sleep.

Stories Behind Words

by William S. Penfield

Bombast

King Henry VIII, who ruled England from 1509 until 1547, had broad shoulders and a broad, deep chest.

Courtiers, in seeking to flatter the husky monarch, padded their doublets — close-fitting jackets — so as to appear broad across the shoulders and chest.

The English called this padding "bombast." They had borrowed the word from French in the form "bombace" — padding. The French had borrowed the word from Latin in the form "bombax," meaning cotton, the material most used for padding.

Since inflated or pretentious language, like a doublet, was padded, the English called it "bombast."

Be A First Job Indian Before Becoming Chief

By Roberta Fleming Roesch

If we could visit every college campus and scream from the college rooftops the right approach for getting first jobs, these are the things we'd shout about most from the school's biggest megaphone!

First, we'd talk about the willingness to be an Indian instead of a Chief when you're starting out, because each year around this time it begins to disturb us when we hear young people discuss ideas about unrealistic first jobs.

Point No. 2

Second, we'd emphasize finding out exactly what jobs exist in the field you wish to enter.

To do this we'd keep shouting about: (a) talking to the school's guidance and placement bureau; (b) asking questions of the people already in the field; (c) reading vocational books and pamphlets covering your job field; (d) scanning classified job advertisements every day to find out what jobs are most available in the field, what they're called, and what requirements you'll need for them.

Skill Needed

Third, we'd get down on our knees — right on that college rooftop — and plead for a skill in typing to accompany your job hunting. Shorthand may also help you enter the field of your choice.

Fourth, we'd urge you to take whatever job you can get as a starting job in the field. It may not be your dream job, of course. And it may pay a few less dollars than you have in mind.

But once you get in the field you can job-hunt from the inside. And, while you look, you can learn and earn instead of being out of a job and out of a paycheck, too.

Fifth, we'd advise using your first job to learn the language and routine of the field in which you hope to progress. Campuses don't teach this. But practical experiences do.

Sixth, we'd recommend that you keep your eyes open for the requirements you'll need to advance to a good spot in the field. Look and listen for coming trends and prepare yourself for them.

More Training

At the same time find out what courses will help you and get more training through them.

Family Fare

Just Between Us——

by Bobby Westbrook

Dubrovnik, Yugoslavia — Every child I suppose has dreamed of living in one of the fairy tale villages straight out of Disney, but this is probably as close as I shall ever come—a medieval town, with modern plumbing; a luxury hotel in Dalmatia where everyone, even the elevator boy, speakes English; and the Adriatic lapping at the doorstep.

It was a happy ending of a day that had started badly in Litograd with the first rain we have had on our whole trip.

Although we had risen early at 7:30, the cafe of the Crna Gora was crowded with men with brief cases and umbrellas dripping on the marble floors.

Then the windshield wiper wouldn't work and it took an hour and a half to find a little auto shop where they could weld it.

English is now the second language of Yugoslavia, and is taught in all the schools.

Wherever we stop we are surrounded by children who enunciate very clearly, "Do you speak English?" and then flee bashfully, giggling, when we say "Yes."

If they have time, they filter back to ask "What is your name?"

But the children have not yet reached the age where they become desk clerks. German is the second language of the older generation.

However, we were finally on our way in the drizzle, heading toward the mountains veiled in low - hanging clouds. Whoever thought the expression "up in the clouds" expressed romantic exaltation nas never driven up through them.

They are gray, cold, damp and their only virtue was that they hid the chasms we were crossing.

The road - building going on in Yugoslavia dwarfs even the Rt. 80 Shortway—Penn Can Highway connection we are familiar with in Monroe County.

The engineering problems *they have to solve are in por*portion to the mountains — six times as high. And they are doing it with a pitiful collection of mechanical equipment.

Admiring their initiative as we were, there were times during the trip when we wished heartily that they'd leave well enough alone.

In the process of turning secondary roads — narrow, unpaved and pot-holed, but with a good stone base even though 10 and 21 per cent grades are common — into smooth two-land super highways, they left us floundering in red mud.

The main difference between our two methods of road building, besides our huge earth-moving equipment, is that our new roads are closed to traffic until every last detail has been completed, officially inspected and formally dedicated by officials.

Here with only one road possible, the road is never closed, no matter how hazardous or impossible.

If you have to back up to let the trucks and busses go by, at least they are running. As so we were, although in low gear for most of the journey.

The most spectacular vista was to come out of the clouds into the pass and look down on the Adriatic stretching to the horizons with rain spouts connecting dark blue clouds with the equally dark blue sea.

Winding our way down to the sea, we came to still another climate — wisteria hanging in great purple clusters on arboss, echoed in deeper purple in the giant iris underneath, dinasarus of cactus, barrel-trunked palms and umbrella pines, reminding the traveler that this is the Dalmatian coast, opposite the east coast of Italy and just as Mediterranean.

One of the fabled places we passed was Sveti Stefan, a whole town founded 500 years age as a defense against pirates, which has been turned into a hotel with guests quartered in homes outwardly unchanged from the 16th century.

Nearby is the terraced Molicer — former residence of the former royal family, now also a hotel.

On the Dalmatian coast, you can't follow the coastline because the mountains drop straight into the sea with one resort, close as sea gull or the boats ply, but many land miles apart by roads which must cross the mountains from the next resort.

From Sveti Stefan to Kotor we backtracked with the tiny toy railroad which might have been the original of "The Little Engine That Could", emerging finally on a mountain side, Mount Lovcen, looking down as classical a fiord as you could find this side of Norway.

Kotor itself is an acient wall town, with the walls blending with the rocks of the mountain that encircles it.

Following the road that nudges between mountain and sea, we crossed the narrow neck of the bay of Kotor on the weirdest ferry you ever saw — two boats linked by planks which could accommodate two small trucks or three small cars.

It was one of the few places where the roadside sign of a camera crossed by a minus sign warned us not to take pictures.

However, the really inportant pictures are those etched on the travelers memory and Dubrovnik, floating with its walls, battlements, towers and steep-piled houses on a peninsula somewhere between sea and ski is just such a picture to dream on.

WATER GAP POST OFFICE—This is the site of the former Wallace house at corner of Main St. and Shepherd Ave. in Delaware Water Gap. The new Post Office will be built here. (Staff Photo by MacLeod)

Water Gap Post Office Rising At Wallace Place

By Nellie Burd
Daily Record Correspondent

Delaware Water Gap — The "Old Wallace Place" is now a memory to residents of Delaware Water Gap and to many who formerly lived in the borough.

It has been torn down and the ground at the corner of Main St. and Shepherd Ave. has been levelled to prepare for construction of the new post office.

Johiel Wallace, a colorful personality who built that home, died in April, 1933, just one month before his 98th birthday.

As a young man he had built the four-room house for himself and his wife Eleanora. They had three sons Edward, David, and George; and, one daughter, Mary, who married the William Ramsey for whom the Stroudsburg elementary school is named.

When the house was built in the village of a few straggling houses and unpaved streets, it was considered a model of comfort with its two narrow downstairs rooms and its small fireplace, and long veranda across the front of the house.

There Johiel could sit in the evening and see practically the life of the village from one end of Main Street to the other.

He was a man of powerful build and had been a blacksmith in his younger days and later helped in the tannery that was near the railroad station in East Stroudsburg.

In that little home he had helped his wife do some fruit and vegetable canning during Civil War days when glass cans first came as a luxury.

He laughed years later as he told how every can spoiled be*cause the canners did not know* about granulated sugar and that it was necessary as a preservative.

From that porch of the little home built on the hillside above Main Street, he had watched the luxuries and changes that came to his home town — paint on houses, sidewalks, individual home cisterns and wells and then water pipes and kitchen sinks, telephones, automobiles, a town trolley.

As mail carrier from railroad to the post office for many years, he never lingered with the large groups waiting around the post office door, but hastened back to his rocking chair on that front porch.

If he wanted to address any comment, his voice which was as powerful as his frame, could be heard as easily in a crowd as if he were using a modern mike.

To residents of Water Gap, despite a new building on the "Wallace lot" there will be always a shadowy figure of the patriarchial looking Johiel Wallace hovering near it.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

Children and adults who loved the circus table which won ten dolars for the Junior Woman's club in our Table of the Month exhibit last week, will be equally charmed by the Animal Fair toys that have just arrived in our Toy Department from this famous manufacturer in Minnesota.

One big cardboard box, cut and painted to resemble a circus wagon, contains two stuffed toys that never in the flesh would be caged together, I'm sure. One is Lance the Lion; the other, Tickey Tiger. The price for the set is 7.48, and Ernie Michelfelder assures me that the "cage box" is so attractive children will just naturally wish to put the animals away at night. (Aside to Ernie in behalf of all mothers: "You wanna bet?"

Other Animal Fair animals are the Tortoise and the Hare, the Lion and the Mouse, at 4.88, and also paired, Red Riding Hood and the Big Bad Wolf. At 9.98, we have the three bears. One might spell that "bares," because Papa Bear is wearing a vest, Mama is wearing an apron, and baby has only a bib! Their box takes the form of their little cottage. In each case, a book with the story is included.

At 2.48 each we have a red fox . . . a raccoon (this I love—it looks almost devilish with the black mask around its eyes) . . . a dear little squirrel, holding a nut between its paws . . . and numerous others. All are cuddly, and all are lovable. A child would be mad for them . . . so would Mom and Dad.

* * *

Tuned to the teen ager is the Autograph Hound in a new, styrofoam-filled version, with its own marking pencil. The very large hound is 3.48; the smaller size, 2.48. Whether you collect the autographs of school chums or celebrities, these hounds have a decorative quality all their own just right for a young girl's boudoir or den.

* * *

And what about THIS? Wyckoff's, being head quarters of the Tammy doll in this area, has coupons which may enable some girl from this area to win for herself and an adult a trip to either Disneyland or the World's Fair. With the blanks, there are also cartoons to be colored, and submitted to Ideal, manufacturer of the Tammy doll.

Everyone knows that our bright and wonderful young people are "going places," but Wyckoff's would truly love to see someone from this area go by astro jet with all expenses paid.

St. Johns Luthern Church Addition Nears Completion

By Stanley Schaffer
Daily Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — A new Colonial decor will enhance St. John's Lutheran Church, Stroudsburg, by late summer when a 16-year-old dream of the congregation is realized.

The Rev. William C. Leopold, pastor of St. John's said, "The church congregation has grown to an overwhelming 1,000 members. This has brought about limited facilities in education, social and church activities. Therefore we have to provide progressive plans for expansion, advancement and improvement."

Rev. Leopold explained that the three-year fund drive activated in 1961 had a $175,000 goal which he added, "was greatly exceeded."

Leading Architect

In October of 1962 the congregation approved the architect's design and construction. Charles A. Scheuringer, of Abington, Pa., an architect from the firm of Alfred R. Olexy, Associates, designed the plans for the church. Scheuringer is regarded as one of the leading Lutheran Church architects.

The man responsible for substantiating the foundation plans is John Burrows, structural engineer, who is well-known for his work on the renowned Walt Whitman Bridge, which spans the lower Delaware River.

A construction contract for $340,000 was let to Eddinger Co. of Stroudsburg and the building program was begun in July of 1963.

Initially, three phases are involved in the 1750 Colonial Williamsburg, Va., renovation. The phases are increased facilities, restoration and urban renewal.

Rev. Leopold indicated that work on the new building is being completed first so that the congregation can move into it while the original building undergoes renovation.

Restoration

How much of the original building will undergo a change?

The original church will be enlarged by 25 per cent. This will include the renovation and the new units. Included in the plans are a new balcony, enlarged chancel, and a much larger narthex which will house cloak rooms.

Mural Painting

"During the demolition", explained Pastor Leopold, "a mural painting, believed to be over 100 years old was uncovered. The mural will be saved and placed in the memorial room adjacent to the narthex.

"The mural is on a solid section of wall, which the workmen removed intact with great care. The dimensions are approximately five feet in width and seven feet in height."

Design

The interior and exterior design will follow the original basic colonial style, architecture. This represents a period of time, 1750, when Stroudsburg was founded.

Where did the basic design originate?

Research by the Rockefeller foundation of Williamsburg, Va., indicated that this was an authentic Colonial Williamsburg, Va., 1750 design.

It was noted that the brick is being especially manufactured to match the original brick finish. Then, too, the solid stone was imported from the Gettysburg-Carlisle Ridge stone quarries to insure a semblance to the original stone.

Lighting fixtures will include glass chandeliers of that period, pewter hardware especially treated with silver to resemble antiquated, colonial metal trim and ornamentation will be used. Wood paneling and wood finishes bearing a resemblance to the interior of Independence Hall will add to the overall colonial look.

Primarily the new unit is "L" shaped in design, and will contain an upper and lower floor. The longest end of the "L" will run east and west on the north side of the building.

Education Wing

The ground floor will contain 12 classrooms, church school office and library. Also, a 250-300 person capacity multi-purpose room will serve several purposes, namely; social meetings, assemblies, worship chapel. There is also an attached kitchen.

Administrative Wing

This area will contain the pastor's study, secretary's office and workroom, sacristy work room, church lounge with an attached pullman kitchen. The lounge area will serve as a meeting place for student union activities, organizational meetings, and small receptions.

Youth Room

The youth activities room will be condusive to youth work and scouting activities. Adjacent to the youth room will be a choir robing room and rehearsal room.

At this time St. John's boasts one Boy Scout Troop, one Cub Scout Troop, one Girl Scout Troop, two Brownie Troops, and one Cadet unit.

Urban Renewal

What decisive effects, if any, will this renovation have on the adjacent areas and Stroudsburg as a whole?

The congregation decided on remaining at the present location, rather than relocate. "The decision to remain was a wise one, and will do much for the immediate surrounding area," explained Rev. Leopold.

He indicated that the large east courtyard "will be beautifully trimmed and adorned with Mountain Laurel and Rhododendron." The south courtyard will be trimmed out with planters.

"Regretfully," he said, "several houses at the rear of the church, to the west had to be demolished to allow room for a large parking lot.

"However, these changes are necessary for continued progress and increases stability," the Rev. said.

"Then, too, these changes will increase the property value and upgrade the areas adjacent to and near 9th and Main Sts. Similarly, the Stroud Mansion located at 9th and Main Sts. along with the new St. John's will add to the historical significance of this area of Stroudsburg."

NEARING FINAL STAGE is the new southwing addition of St. John's Lutheran Church, 9 N. 9th St., Stroudsburg. The Rev. William Leopold, pastor, believes the addition containing classrooms and other worship facilities, will be completed by this summer. (Photo by MacLeod)

1964 Program Available To Winter Wheat Growers

STROUDSBURG — Winter wheat growers, who seeded their crop last fall, are still eligible to take part in the 1964 voluntary wheat program, A. W. Martin, Chairman, Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, said today.

He pointed out that many growers have already taken the first step toward participating by planting within the wheat allotments established for the 1964 crop before the marketing quota vote last spring.

The next step, Martin explained, is for growers who want to participate in the 1964 program to get in touch with ASC County Office and sign up up as a participant. The wheat program signup will extend through May 15.

After signing up, qualifying as a participant will mean:

(1) Staying within the farm's 1964 acreage allotment, which already has had the minimum qualifying acreage diversion deducted. Additional acreage may be diverted if the grower wished.

(2) Devoting to conserving use all the diverted land, in addition to maintaining the farm's normal acreage in conserving use. The minimum diversion amounts to 11.11 per cent of the farm allotment.

(3) Staying within the allotment for any other allotment crop on the farm. Feed grains are not considered to be an allotment crop.

(4) Staying within the wheat allotment on any other farm in which the grower has an interest in the wheat.

By participating in the voluntary wheat program, the grower will be eligible for a diversion payment (20 per cent of the county's wheat loan rate) on the normal yield of the diverted acres and certificates based on the normal production of his eligible acreage planted for harvest.

The certificates will have a cash value of 70 cents per bushel for the domestic marketing certificates, representing the producer's share of the wheat allocated for U.S. food, and 25 cents per bushel for the export marketing certificates, covering his share of the export marketing allocation. These certificates are redeemable at commercial banks.

Growers will be eligible for wheat price-support loans if the farm's wheat acreage is not in excess of the farm allotment.

Payments covering diversion and certificates will begin after July 1.

The boy, Timothy Hughes, had been the object of a block-by-block search in the Flushing section of Queens, N. Y., by fellow officers of patrolman Gerard Hughes since he was reported missing Saturday.

Cards Club Phillies, 9-2

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals survived a beanball rhubarb, unleashing a 14-hit attack that sank the Philadelphia Phillies 9-2 Monday night.

Ken Boyer tripled and singled for three runs and Curt Flood homered and singled for two as the Cardinals built a 5-1 lead before starter Bob Gibson was kicked out in the fourth inning in the beanball dispute.

He had received a warning and automatic $50 fine in the third for throwing two straight pitches too close to Phillie pitcher Dennis Bennett.

When reliever Jack Baldshun hit Gibson with a pitch in the last half of the fourth inning, Gibson tossed his bat underhanded toward the mound and plate umpire Doug Harvey ejected him.

Baldshun also received a warning and the automatic fine.

Roger Craig relieved Gibson and got credit for the victory.

Carl Warwick hit a two-run homer on the first pitch following the rubarb set off by the ejection.

The loss bounced the Phillies out of first place for the first time this season.

Wagner Hits Grand Slam; Orioles Win

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles sent 12 men to the plate scoring eight runs on four hits in the sixth inning and crushed the Washington Senators 11-4 Monday night.

The Oriole rally was aided by four walks and a throwing error by second baseman Don Blasingame on a suicide squeeze bunt which led to three unearned runs.

Jim Duckworth replaced Washington starter Tom Cheney after Baltimore scored twice and tied the score 4-4 on Norm Siebern's third hit. The relief hurler faced five batters and didn't retire any of them.

Sam Bowens delivered the go-ahead run with a double. Two walks forced in another, and two more scored when Blasingame threw wildly after fielding a bunt by Dick Hall.

Wagner teed off on rookie loser Bill Spanswick in the seventh. The slam was his third in the majors and the third in Fenway Park in the last five games.

Wagner also singled across a run in the first inning, hiking his American League leading runs batted in total to 19.

Joe Azcue accounted for two more runs with a sacrifice fly and triple. Veteran right-hander Dick Donovan was the winner.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee left-hander Denny Lemaster surrendered a lead-off homer to Charley Smith in the first inning, then hurled hitless ball until the ninth and wound up with a two-hit, 2-1 victory over the New York Mets Monday night.

Smith, a third baseman acquired on waivers from the Chicago White Sox, started the game by lining a 3-2 pitch into the left field bleachers for his first homer. Ron Hunt got the only other Mets' hit, a single with one out in the ninth.

Lemaster received all the cushion he needed as the Braves scored two runs, one unearned, off New York starter Galen Cisco.

Pocono Mountain Trims PV Bears

SWIFTWATER A five-run fifth inning yesterday paved the way for Pocono Mountain's 6-2 win over arch-rival Pleasant Valley as Art Altemose of the Cardinals twirled a nifty hitter.

Lambert Murphy and Ken Bowman hit the only safeties for the Bears — both singles. Bowman, who also hurled the distance for the losers, yielded seven hits.

Behind by 2-1, Pocono Mountain pushed across five runs in the bottom of the fifth with the biggest blow of the game bearing off the bat of Ron Litwin who laced a bases-loaded triple to left-center. Litwin went 2-for-3 at the plate with three RBI's.

Altemose also helped his own cause at the plate, poking two singles in three trips with one RBI.

The victory was the first in three outings for the Cards.

BANGOR — Behind the two-hit, shutout pitching of southpaw Larry Lobb, Bangor High School thumped the visiting Green Knights of Pen Argyl by a 9-0 score yesterday in a Lehigh - Northampton League game.

The Slaters, who play baseball every day this week, jumped off to a one-run margin in the first inning and piled up the score throughout the game. Lobb held the Knights to singles in the third and sixth. He struckout eight and no Pen Argyl runner got past second.

Lobb helped his own cause by slamming out two hits, including a double. Other two-time hitters for the Slaters were Roger Ackerman and Jim Parsons.

Bangor continues its heavy schedule today with a visit to Hellertown for a league encounter. The Slaters are now 1-0-1 in the league and 2-1-1 overall.

S-Burg Rolls To 6th Win; Slams Lehighton, 18 To 5

LEHIGHTON — Stroud Union's high-flying Mountaineers yesterday rolled to their sixth straight victory while posting a 3-0 mark in the Lehigh Valley League by slamming host Lehighton, 18-5.

The Mounties rocked three Lehighton hurlers for 16 hits and sent 14 batters to the plate in the seventh frame when they scored nine runs. The first 10 batters reached base safely before an out was recorded.

Glenn Bisbing led the Mountaineers hitting assault with a home run and double while going 4-for-5 at the plate. He also scored four runs.

Other extra-base hits for Stroud Union included a triple by Dave Pierson, and doubles by Fred Frantz and Paul Albert. Albert had three hits in four trips while Pierson, Mike Thurston and Les David each hit safely twice.

The Mountaineers held a 4-0 lead until the bottom of the fourth when Lehighton came up with four markers to tie the count.

But the Stroud Union bats continued to boom as the Mountaineers tallied three runs in the fifth, added two more in the sixth and then applied the crusher with their nine-run seventh.

Pierson hurled the route for the winners, allowing five hits while striking out 12 and walking but one. Only three of the runs scored against him were earned.

Larry Miller Back Home

CATASAUQUA, Pa. (AP) —Larry Miller, all-state basketball player from Catasauqua High School, who was reported missing earlier, returned home Monday.

Miller, 18, had been away since Saturday morning.

There was no comment immediately from his family on where he had been. The boy's mother, Mrs. Julius Miller, had reported him missing Monday.

He did not appear at a testimonial banquet for the Catasauqua High School basketball team Saturday night. It was explained then that Miller had been under severe strain and pressure, overwhelmed by a reported 150 scholarships offered him by colleges throughout the country.

Miller, 6-foot-four, was the leading scorer in Pennsylvania schoolboy ranks during the past season when He was picked for the all-state first team for the third year in a row.

Lakers Select Hazzard, Nash

NEW YORK (AP) — All-Americas Walt Hazzard of UCLA and Cotton Nash of Kentucky were selected by the Los Angeles Lakers and Gary Bradds of Ohio State, another All-America, was tapped by the Baltimore Bullets in the National Basketball Association draft of college players Monday.

The New York Knickerbockers, because they had the poorest won-lost record in the nine-team circuit, had the first choice and they went for Jim (Bad News) Barnes of Texas Western.

Barnes, 6-foot-8, averaged 29.1 points for 28 games last season. He was also fifth among the major college players in rebounding.

Territorial Choices

Hazzard, who led UCLA to the national championship, and George Wilson of Cincinnati, selected by the Cincinnati Royals, were the only territorial choices. The rule giving teams territorial selection rights is to be discontinued after next year's draft. Nash was drafted by the Lakers on the second round.

The Detroit Pistons, who had the second choice in the opening round, fingered Joe Caldwell, 6-5 from Arizona State. The Philadelphia 76ers named Lucious Jackson, the 6-10 Little All-America from Pan American. The St. Louis Hawks picked Jeff Mullins of Duke as their first choice while the San Francisco Warriors chose Barry Kramer of NYU, a 1963 All-America.

The champion Boston Celtics made seven-foot Mel Counts of Oregon State their first round selection. This prompted Red Auerbach, the Celts' coach, to point out, "Counts can run like heck for a big guy. We would have liked to have Caldwell, but I'm very satisfied."

Considers Retirement

Counts may be used to back up Bill Russell, Boston's star center. Clyde Lovellette, the substitute for Russell last season, is reportedly considering retirement.

The Knickerbockers, seeking a big man for rebound duties, grabbed 6-10 Willis Reed of Grambling, La., another member of the Little All-America, on the second round. He was second among the small-college players in rebounds last season with a 21.3 average.

"We thought Reed would be grabbed by someone else on the first round," said Eddie Donovan, the Knicks' coach. "He could be our center although Barnes also can play there."

Barnes is a member of the U.S. Olympic team and will not be available to the Knicks until well after the NBA season has started. "But," added Donovan, "I think he'll fit in with us nicely after that."

In addition to Jackson and Reed, two other members of the AP's Little All-America were chosen. They were Tom Black of South Dakota State by Baltimore and Jim Boutin of Lewis and Clark by New York.

The Knickerbockers, who have finished in the Eastern Division cellar the past five years, also drafted Howard (Butch) Komives of Bowling Green, the top major college scorer last season with a 36.7 point average for 23 games.

Cincinnati drafted Bill Chmielewski, 6-10 from Dayton. He dropped out of college in his sophomore year but was eligible because his original class has graduated.

Other leading players drafted were Ira Harge of New Mexico by Philadelphia; Ron Bonham, Cincinnati, by Boston; Wally Jones, Villanova and Les Hunter, Chicago Loyola by Detroit.

Pius X Wins By 7-5

ROSETO — The Royals of Pius X yesterday scored their third win in five outings with a 7-5 verdict over visiting Blairstown, N. J.

The Jerseyites outhit the Royals by a 12-6 margin but still held the lead from the third inning on.

Pius X held a 3-0 lead until Blairstown finally got on the scoreboard in the top of the fifth with two markers. But the Royals bounced back in the bottom of the fifth for three more and then added an insurance tally in the sixth.

Len Litzi tripled in the third for the Royals and scored on a wild throw for the first run of the game. That proved to be the only extra-base hit in the contest.

Lake Harmony Businessmen Move To Promote Region

LAKE HARMONY — A letter listing emergency phone numbers was mailed this week to all cottage owners in the Lake Harmony area by the newly formed Lake Harmony Businessmen's Assn.

The letter was prepared by a committee from the association listing the names of physicians, police chief and the telephone numbers to use in the event of any type emergency.

The letter also lists the various associations and organizations in the area and their meeting times and places. It also lists the days garbage will be collected.

Welcome Sign

The businessmen's association also voted to erect a "welcome" sign at the Rt. 903 entrance to the Lake Harmony area.

The sign is one of many projects planned by association members who have undertaken a program to make the area a better place to live, work and play.

James Macalush Jr., association president, in commenting on the program, said, "Lake Harmony has all the necessary facilities to make this area stand out among all the rest."

The organization was established in March with the purpose of bringing all businessmen in the area into a single unit to work for the betterment of the community.

Since March, the association has prepared and approved by-laws and a constitution.

The association will make an attempt to have the Kidder Township supervisors set up a regular refuse collection system in the area.

It was reported the Lake Harmony Association, another organization in the area, has recently made arrangements with a representative of the State Health Department to have tests taken of the lake water to make sure the water isn't being contaminated in any way.

The businessmen voted to support the work of the lake association.

Next meeting will be held at 8 p.m. May 26 in the Lake Harmony Fire House.

First Barrett Boy Scout Gets Parvuli Dei Award

CANADENSIS — Michael Grab, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grab, Cresco, recently became the first Boy Scout in Barrett Township to receive the Parvuli Dei award.

Grab, a Boy Scout in Troop 89, received the award which is a recognition given by the church for advancement in religious knowledge and spiritual formation.

It consists of 12 requirements which include daily prayer, the cross, spiritual service, spiritual tools, religious handicraft, parish history, church support, spiritual safety, heroes of God, knowledge of the diocese and the life of Christ.

Rev. William Cusick, pastor of St. Ann's Roman Catholic Church, reviewed the scout and arranged for the presentation to be made at a Scout's Holy Hour in St. Anthony's Roman Catholic Church, Easton.

As a step toward a first class badge in Boy Scouts, Grab is serving as a den chief in pack 89, den 1 and serves as an altar boy in St. Ann's Church. This work is toward the Boy Scout religious award, Ad Altare Dei.

The Parvuli Dei award is a silver medal depicting the holy family, which is suspended from a bar pin and bears the inscription, "Parvuli Dei."

Vary those pancakes for Sunday brunch! Serve them with creamed chipped beef or chicken, or with creamed mushrooms and sliced hard-cooked eggs. For a garnish, some parsley springs.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Tuesday, May 5, 1964

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Be careful not to get ahead of yourself, or reach for too much before you have taken care of what is at hand. Don't let a "mood" cause a misunderstanding.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — If you do not procrastinate, you should be able to handle pending matters satisfactorily, and with little tension. Don't anticipate difficulty; take what you must in stride.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Speed is not the answer to solving problems; neither is over-caution. You'll do best by maintaining equanimity, the better to judge objectively, gain clearer perspectives.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Solar influences extremely favorable. A good day in which to receive cooperation from co-workers, to meet—and best — competition. Better-than - usual advantages.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Some situations may be difficult to handle, others easier than anticipated. Handle all calmly, serenely and with self-confidence, and you should do well.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Emphasize team work now and lend a hand, in tight spots, to those who could use it. A so-so day, awaiting your clever management.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Rapid progress in some areas and tedious striving with apparently little advancement in the total good, the long-range benefits.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Pick up loose ends as quickly as possible; move forward smartly where the path is smoother, and take more paths where snags appear. Build from a solid foundation.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Protect income but do not become penurious, a tendency now. A generously auspicious day, in which originality could pay off handsomely.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Small things may try your patience, but you have the will to overcome aggravation. Use it! Be careful in services, handling money, the property of others.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Neptune influences fairly favorable. With the best use of your mentality, inspired plans and artistic talents, you can accomplish much for the day, the future.

YOU BORN TODAY are roundly able, self - reliant, persistent, responsible to a trust; usually an astute speculator. You like luxuries and a good time; may over indulge both. Practice moderation with desires, money, emotions. Many artists, writers, musicians and professionals in the medical field have been Taureans. You can do the extraordinary, and normally welcome challenges with zest.

Area Artists Exhibiting At ESSC

EAST STROUDSBURG — Art work of area artists — Nancy Hebard, Sterling Strauser, Agnes Dyer, Gloria Randolph, Jesse Weiss and George Johnson — is presently on exhibit in the art gallery of East Stroudsburg State College.

The exhibit — open to the public — can be viewed from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m., Monday through Friday, until May 12. Beginning on May 13, the gallery will be closed for the college examination period but will open for viewing on Alumni Day on May 23.

Watercolors by Nancy Hebard include the paintings titled "Littoral," "Backwoods Stand," "Untitled," "The Garden," and "Near Dark." Paintings and work by Strauser are "Bouncing Moon Farms," "Reason Has Moons" and "Moon Through Safety Glass." A wood sculpture by Strauser on exhibit is "His Master's Voice."

Colorful paintings by Agnes Dyer occupy the East end of the art gallery. Contributions by Gloria Randolph feature the paintings titled "Undergrowth XXIX," "Upon These Rocks," "Bare Winter" and "Hidden Village."

Mrs. Randolph is also exhibiting a wood sculpture entitled "Construction With Driftwood."

The west wall of the gallery is adorned with woodblock prints by George Johnson. Also displayed in the present show are photographs — basically snowscapes and portrait studies by Jesse Weiss.

Kidnapper Draws Life

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The acknowledged kidnaper of actor Leon Ames' wife was sentenced to life imprisonment recently.

Lynn Wayne Benner, 21, La Mirada mechanic, had pleaded guilty in Superior Court to the Feb. 12 crime.

A confessed robber who told police he got as much as $15,000 in more than 50 holdups, Benner had his biggest haul, Ames' $50,000, ransom money, for only a few moments before police arrested him.

Benner, father of three, said he only robbed when "I needed money to provide food for my wife and children."

Can You Con A Lie Detector?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Can you beat the lie detector? A Fordham University psychologist believes you can, and he outlined ways recently while testifying before a congressional subcommittee.

The testimony of the psychologist, Dr. Joseph F. Kubis, was that lie detectors and their operators are fallible. A House subcommittee on government operations, which listened to Kubis, is investigating the use of these machines by the federal government.

Kubis said there were two ways to beat the machine, either by flooding the record with so much information that it makes no sense, or by trying to steer the examiner to the wrong track by producing an excitable reaction to an unimportant question.

The lie detector machine measures a person's breathing, blood pressure, and palm-sweat while he replies to questions. Kubis said that a subject can move around a bit and fill the charts with all sorts of waves and wiggles that make it impossible for the examiner to read the records.

Kubis said that if an examiner questions all this moving about by a subject, the subject need only say that he is nervous. But, Kubis added, a good examiner should stop giving the test if the subject seems so nervous.

Members of the subcommittee asked about the possibility of a subject suppressing his excitement in answer to a question. Kubis said it is nearly impossible to accomplish, that subjects trying to suppress their emotions actually cause more tension in themselves and give a greater emotional response.

Testimony like this prompted Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., chairman of the subcommittee, to attack again the use of the lie detector as a supposed infallible instrument to detect crime and screen applicants for jobs.

"The rapid growth of the use of these imperfect machines run by inadequately trained operators," he said, "may be an invasion of the privacy of individuals not even suspect of crime."

Recreation Means Dollars

HARRISBURG (AP)—Outdoor recreation promises economic boom opportunities for rural areas, John Sullivan, Philadelphia regional director of the Federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, said recently.

Sullivan told a Regional Rural Areas Development Conference that the same technical revolution that is killing off the farm is creating the leisure and affluence which makes the farm valuable for recreation.

"By happy coincidence," Sullivan said, "the small family farm near the cities, which has felt the worst effects of this obsolescence, affords the open space which is most needed for developing outdoor recreation."

No suffering tears or care;
And in his time, we will surely find,
Him waiting over there.

Cy Barrett Says

Bitter Tears Flow

By Cyrus Barrett, Jr.

DEAR CY:

My former company is a Judas! For six years I worked there, until marriage. Before I *left, whenever they needed ex*tra help, former employees were hired back. Naturally, I expected this future benefit. My husband and I divorced and I have custody of our two daughters, with very little alimony. When I asked my former employer for part-time work, I was told: "Sorry, but we now have a policy of hiring extra help through temporary help services only." After giving them six of my best years, I have been sold down the river.

KITTY Z.

DEAR KITTY:

Blot your bitter tears, Kitty, and swim with the current. During the past 10 to 15 years, temporary help services have become a major employment factor. By hiring through them, employers often can effect substantial savings in unemployment compensation, workmen's compensation and may get more work per dollar. Retraining time for rusty former workers is eliminated as temporary employees are usually up-to-date, regarding job techniques.

Water cooler time for old timers reestablishing social contacts is not an employer cost. Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison man*agement consultants, recently* undertook to study "The Economics of Using a Temporary Help Service." Their report states,

"The productivity of the employees of temporary help firms is usually 15 to 20% higher than that of a company's own employees." Your company never promised you future employment, Kitty, and temporary help services can do more for you. Through these services, you can secure more continuous spare-time work at hours of your own choosing. Make friends with your former employer, temporary help services . . . and money.

DEAR CY:

Do you believe in using want ads to obtain customers or partners, when the nature of the business must be kept an iron clad secret?

MR. ANONYMOUS

CY

DEAR CY:

Thank you for referring Dolly H. to the League of Women Voters for voting information. The league is a non-partisan organization dedicated to the principles of self-government established in the Constitution of the United States. We work to promote political responsibil*ity through informed and active* participation of citizens in government.

MRS. PAUL B. PORTER,
PRESIDENT
L. OF W. V. OF UTAH

DEAR MRS. PORTER:

In my opinion, Dolly's personal business success hinged on seeking out the League of Women Voters. I was pleased to recommend it. Treat Dolly gently. Her husband raised her as a pet.
